

From: Jay [\[mailto: \]](mailto:)
Sent: Thursday, 9 December 2010 11:44 PM
To: Kathleen Almond
Subject: Re :

I believe that if we have pass our study from english speaking country then we dont need to give any language exam after finishing study successfully.

English has been tested from university. Nursing curriculum and hospital placements had given us chance to show English communication skills. It is really very stressful for us to rely on IELTS or OET for nursing registration as we had already passed exams and placements from university.

If we studied from non-english speaking country ,then we require to achieve a certain grade from English exam to get admission or work here. However, after completing our study from english speaking country, the requirement of English remains the same. It looks unfair for me.

I request you to look this matter seriously and give us positive feedback.

Thanks.