

From: Davinder Kaur [\[mailto:_____\]](mailto:)
Sent: Thursday, 9 December 2010 12:11 PM
To: Kathleen Almond
Subject:

Dear kathleen

I think that if an individual has done his/her education in english then they are able to communicate appropriately and effectively with the patient and the colleagues. Requirement of IELTS and OET is necessary for those people who were never exposed to english before and hence must be tested before they interact with their professional life.

so, these requirements must be removed for people who have done their tertiary studies in english.

I shall be very grateful to you for considering my opinion.

your sincerely,
davinder